So beneficial and lasting is their effect that the makers can afford to guarantee that they will give you satisfaction or they'll return your money.

There's no case of Catarrh so hopeless that Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cannot cure. The makers will pay $500 reward for any incurable case.

The Eye of a Mountain.

"The Old Rag" is a long jagged spur of the Blue Ridge that skirts the counties of Madison and Greene, and looms its name after reaching farther south. It is one of the features of the splendid country through which it passes—grand, gloomy and peculiar, its rugged sides clear-cut against the sky and looking forbidding in its towering majesty. Here was the scene of the "Gold Bug" of Poe, one of the wildest and thrilling stories in which the great writer indulges in the mysteries of the stars and divination. The eastern side of the Old Rag overlooks a long stretch of country and is seen a long way off. About three-fourths of the way up the side of this mountain is a phenomenon that has for many years attracted the attention of the people for miles around, a curious mountain peak, and yet to this day remains the mystery of the "Old Rag."

This is a bright, beautiful light which burns and glows on the side of the Rag. Not every night, but only when the atmosphere is favorable, then the "Eye of the Rag" may be seen, dazzling and scintillating as if it were some immense diamond set in the rocks of the everlasting hills. So far, investigation has not solved the mystery, though at irregular periods, some enthusiasts undertake to investigate, but gives up the problem in a short time. Persons have camped on the mountain for days at a time, seeing the light then as from below; but so precipitous are the sides and so impassable are the huge boulders and rocks that lie all around, that nothing definite has been learned. Others, more scientific and enterprising, have spent days in locating the great diamond, by establishing a line of stations and signals, but the light still shines—the mystery of the ridge.

It can be no artificial light, for no one lives within several miles, and to make such a light night after night for so many years would be simply impossible. Then, too, it is too sparkling, scintillating and opalescent for art to make, and whatever it is, one thing is sure, and that is it is the work of nature. The light on the favorable night is seen thirty miles away, and at that distance still preserves the peculiar shooting, darting features, which are seen to much better advantage from the immediate vicinity.

Had Lost $100,000 at One Faro Sitting.

—James P. Rynders, the famous king, never made much of a talk among the sports about being a rich man. He was one of that kind of people who do a whole lot of things and very little talking. Consequently, when he died in Oakland a few weeks ago, not many of his friends knew whether he had gone to his grave a rich or a poor man. But they said that old Jim would not care because he was alone in the world, never having married.

It has been years since Jim Rynders toyed with the "kitty" or backed the tiger. He had forsaken many of his old sporting friends, and located himself in a quiet home in East Oakland, where he spent his last days in peace and happiness. It was said of him that he had no worry or account of his gambling days, for he had lost more money at the game than he had ever won. In fact, he made the greatest loss in the State, dropping $100,000 at one sitting at faro. That loss is a matter of history. But Jim Rynders did not die penniless. When he retired from the ring of chance, he made a few legitimate speculations, and the reformed gambler made an honest fortune.

Recently W. D. Thomas, John L. Bromley and James Larne filed in the Alameda Superior Court an inventory and appraisal of the Rynders estate. It shows that the deceased had $4,730 in cash, and some mortgages in the East valued at $1,622. He also held a promissory note of an attorney for $2,263. The home place in East Oakland is valued at $4,500. Pulgas Ranch, in San Mateo, consisting of 404 acres, is valued at $60,000. The total value of the estate is $74,222. A niece of the deceased will inherit most of the property. —San Francisco Chronicle.

I was a sufferer from catarrh for fifteen years.

With distressing pain over my eyes. I used Ely's Cream Balm with gratifying results. Am apparently cured. —Z. C. Warner, Rutland, Vt.

I suffered from a severe cold in my head for months and could get no relief. Was advised to use Ely's Cream Balm. It has worked like magic in my case. I am free from my ailment and feel better than I have for many years. I believe it is the best remedy known. —Samuel J. Harris, Wholesale Grocer, 119 Front street, New York.
